City Property Evaluation Project Revived

BENTON — Equalization of project. city property in Scott County appeared once again to have the green light Monday, although Harris Rodgers and Bill Lewis, two judges of the three-member county court, are having second thoughts about whether competent supervisory personnel can be hired to oversee the program.

Last year the state tax commission promised the county eight persons to supervise the equalization program, but earlier this year the state reneged on that promise as a result of the tax commission, appeared before the court Monday and said competent and sufficient workers and supervisors could be hired for a cost within the $20,000, the court last year earmarked for the project.

Ellis and Assessor Andy Halter said supervisory personnel, which reportedly would cost about $6,000, additional to the county, could be school teachers needing summer jobs or possibly upperclass college students. The workers would be drawn from high schools in the county, Ellis and Halter said.

Lewis, who was sworn in as judge of the first district on the court Monday morning, said he might favor the program as proposed by Ellis and Halter. "If competent supervisory personnel can be found and the county can pay them within the budget, I think we need to study the problem further."

"The principal thing we want is competency on the project," Rodgers said.

The county court avoided giving a blanket increase on property in the county last year by promising the state an equalization program would be carried out this year. The state last year threatened a blanket increase if the county did not raise assessments in the county by 10 per cent and carry out the proposed equalization to get all property on a 30 per cent ratio on replacement value as soon as possible.

Ellis estimated the project would take two months to complete after initiated June 1.

If carried out this year, reassessments on farm land, which has already been equalized, and city property would hit the books in 1971.

Teacher Walkout Closes Bluff Schools

POPLAR BLUFF, Mo. AP — All 12 public schools were ordered closed today after most of the city's 290 teachers complied with a Monday night walkout vote of the Community Teachers Association and stayed off the job.

About 175 teachers, members of the Association, established pickets at the schools and also at an area where school buses are kept overnight.

Police aided bus drivers in attempting to cross the picket lines and took into custody three teachers, who were later released without charge.

Supt. Fred M. Morrow ordered the city's 12 schools closed "until this matter is resolved." Enrollment for the schools was 5,507 at beginning of the current school term.

The picketing, conducted by about 175 teachers at the bus area and the schools, followed a breakdown in negotiations between the CTA and the city's school board during the weekend.

Pay for the teachers ranges from $5,700 beginning salaries. The teachers have sought salaries ranging from $6,300 starting pay plus a salary index.

E. T. Peters, school board president, presented a board offer of $6,100 starting pay Sunday night contingent upon passage April 7 of the revised Missouri income tax referendum issue.

Attorney Attacks Magistrate Ruling

Attorney Manuel Drumm accused Magistrate Judge M. E. Montgomery of being "unconstitutional" this morning after the judge refused to rescind an order on a preliminary hearing set for next week for his client Coley Gray, route one, Oran, who is feloniously accused of writing a $9.24 bad check last October to the Fitts Grocery in Tanner.

Drumm also asked the judge to allow Gray, who is being held in jail after being picked up last night, to go free on his own recognizance. Judge Montgomery refused that request on the grounds it is a felony charge is involved. He then set bond at $500.

Drumm told him: "You might as well set his bond at one-half million dollars because he doesn't have any money." The attorney said Gray wanted a preliminary hearing this morning.

James E. Moore III, assistant Scott County prosecuting attorney, said he was unsure whether he could get his witnesses together in time for a preliminary.

"He needs to be arraigned," Drumm said. "The law says a defendant is entitled to quick justice."

Judge Montgomery replied, "I have already made the order for the preliminary."

Drumm said he would be willing to hold a preliminary hearing this afternoon and after the judge reaffirmed his order, the attorney said:

"We think it is unconstitutional and we want to give you (the judge) a chance to rectify it."

Moore then told the court he could hold a preliminary today if the witnesses can be procured.

"I know you can," Drumm said. "It'll take about five minutes on the phone."

Judge Montgomery again said his order would stand, but added he would be available later today should witnesses be procured.

Trade Promotion Plan Will Be Unveiled

NEW MADRID — A plan of action to promote trade and increased business in the city will be presented by Robert Betts of the firm of Gasner, Nathan, Browne Architect Planners, Inc., Memphis, at 8 p.m. today in the community building.

Betts will outline present city business conditions; how to develop future business, and aid to overcome problems faced by existing community businesses.

Other speakers will include John Strinch, general manager of Noranda Aluminum Inc., reduction plant, Sam L. Hunter Jr., and Mayor Robert Riley.

The meeting is an outgrowth of a study made by a Chamber of Commerce committee concerning a general business decline in the city, and problems confronting businesses in attracting and promoting area trade.

Because of diminishing population in the past, businesses have been hard-pressed to expand and modernize in order to obtain and maintain trade in the city.

One hundred and eighty letters have been mailed requesting merchants, businessmen, investors and persons interested in improving business and promoting area trade in the city to attend the meeting.

Sihanouk Vows Fight To Return to Power

TOKYO (AP) — Cambodia's deposed chief of state, Prince Norodom Sihanouk, said today he will try to fight his way back to power.

According to reports from Japanese correspondents in Peking, Sihanouk said he would form a government of national unity and "national liberation army" that would have the support of "brotherly nations," presumably meaning North Vietnam and the Viet Cong.

Japan's biggest newspaper, Asahi, said that if Sihanouk's comeback attempt is supported by the 40,000 Viet Cong and North Vietnamese troops who are operating along Cambodia's border with South Vietnam, the conservatives in Phnom Penh who deposed the prince could not survive for long.

The newspaper added that if these "alien Vietnamese Communist troops" take action, the United States might intervene in support of Cambodian neutrality. But this appeared most unlikely in view of the Nixon administration's efforts to withdraw from Vietnam and the opposition in Congress to expansion of the U.S. involvement in the Indochinese peninsula.

U.S. Secretary of State William P. Rogers told a news conference in Washington Monday the United States recognizes the sovereignty, neutrality and independence of Cambodia and hopes that recent developments will not widen the Vietnam war. He said Cambodia has not asked for military help and he did not anticipate that it would.

North Vietnam, the Viet Cong, Communist China and North Korea all have indicated they support Sihanouk against the Cambodian government and parliament but have not specified what if anything they would do to return him to power.

The situation in Phnom Penh, where Sihanouk's handpicked parliament voted unanimously Wednesday to depose him while he was in Paris, continued calm.

The first amphibious landing made by Continental Marines was the capture of Fort Montague on the island of New Providence in the Bahamas, in March, 1776.

Census Questionnaires To Go Out Saturday

CAPE GIRARDEAU — Questionnaires for the 1970 census of population and housing will be distributed by the post office beginning Saturday to all households in this area, District Manager Byron Mercer announced today.

Distribution of this form before the start of the house-to-house canvass gives the family a chance to assemble information about each member and about the house in advance of the census taker's visit. The district manager urges residents to fill out the forms and have them ready for the census takers when they start their rounds April 1.

The form contains seven questions about every person in the household and 13 questions about the dwelling. The personal information asked: name, address, sex, color or race, month and year of birth, whether married or single, and relationship to head of the household. The information required about the dwelling: number of rooms, cooking facilities, plumbing, if rented or owned.

Most of the questions are answered by filling in the proper tiny circle, with a common lead pencil, making a tiny black dot which can be "read" by census bureau machines. Residents should read the instruction sheet which will come with the questionnaire before filling it out.

The census taker will check the questionnaire to see that all questions have been answered and will give any assistance needed in filling out a questionnaire that is incomplete. At every fifth household, the census taker will seek answers to additional questions covering population and housing characteristics that are being asked of a 20 per cent sample of the Nation's population. The sample questions include inquiries on country of birth, schooling, employment, income, and related items. The additional housing questions relate to rent or value of dwelling, heating equipment, water supply, and other facilities and equipment.

The district manager pointed out that information about individuals and their homes furnished to the census bureau is kept confidential under Federal law. Only statistical totals and averages are published. No individual can be identified in published reports and census information cannot be given to any other government agency, local officials, tax collectors, police, health, welfare, or school officers, or anyone else.

Scenic River Foes Set Meeting

JEFFERSON CITY (AP) — A meeting has been scheduled for Houston, Mo., Saturday to charter a state corporation of landowners against the scenic rivers initiative drive.

Charles R. Leick of Davisville, a livestock owner and attorney who has been a leader in the ranks of those opposing the scenic rivers proposal, announced the meeting.

He said the purpose would be to charter a corporation "not only to defeat the initiative petition but to explore with due deliberation what steps can be implemented to protect their (landowners') interests and at the same time protect the health, morals, education and general welfare of all with respect to the Ozark streams."

Canoe enthusiasts and other outdoor sports groups started the initiative drive last fall to get the voters to enact a scenic rivers law in the November general election. The proposal would give the State Conservation Department the administration of specified stretches of Missouri Ozark streams.

Adopted Children Should Be Told Young That They Were Chosen...

Dear Ann Landers: Recently do is to try to make his life more across the nation millions of exciting so he won't lean so eager readers searched their heavily on fantasy. newspapers for your Unsure of yourself on dates? compassionate advice, your What's right? What's wrong? acerbic wit, your gentle needling Should you? Shouldn't you? seasoned with wisdom and deep Send for Ann Landers' booklet, understanding. What did they "Dating Do's and Don'ts," a find? Please, Ann, leave the meatloaf to the food editors. Stick to your knitting -- of our emotional breaks. Recipes we can get other places. What you give us cannot be duplicated. -- A devoted Reader In Akron

Dear Ak.: Your letter doesn't indicate whether you are male or female, but I'll risk it. Here's a kiss from Chicago. X. Got it?

Dear Ann Landers: Please tell people to keep their mouths shut and not tell children things they ought not know. Our oldest child, a girl age 10, came home crying last Friday. She was truly heartbroken. A neighbor -- an adult woman and herself the mother of three -- informed Gwen that she looked enough like her daddy to be his real child. Gwen asked what she meant by that and was told, "Your Mom and Daddy adopted you, didn't you know?" Gwen did not know and she accused the woman of making up a lie. When the child came home and asked me to tell her the truth I was shocked. I had to tell her she was adopted, something I hadn't planned on doing for another five years.

Gwen has been withdrawn and uncommunicative ever since. She keeps wanting to know where her real mommy and daddy are, and why they gave her away.

Everything was lovely until that neighbor opened up her big mouth. Now we have a depressed and unhappy little girl on our hands. Please print this as a lesson to others who feel inclined to mess up lives. --Wheeling

Dear Wheel: Put the blame where it belongs, lady. Adopted children should be told as soon as they are old enough to talk, that they were chosen. They should be made to feel special. They should also be told that adoptive parents always feel fortunate because there are long waiting lists and many couples must wait for years.

If you had done this, no big-mouth neighbor could have created the problem you are now facing. I am printing your letter so others will not make the mistake of waiting until a youngster is half grown before he is told the truth.

Dear Ann Landers: About seven months ago my husband started to write to a 14-year-old girl who wanted a pen pal. Clyde found her name in a magazine. I thought it was hilarious. He sent her a picture of our 16-year-old nephew -- passed it off as himself, and invented a very believable character.

The joke ended two weeks ago when I learned Clyde has been writing six young girls in five different states. I found the letters in his tackle box. He has been using a Post Office box address.

Clyde is 54 years old and seems to be getting more pleasure out of this letter game than is decent. He insists it is harmless because he will never see these girls. I'm concerned. Should I be? -- Worcester

NBA Joins Bidding for Lanier, Maravich, Etc.

NEW YORK (AP) — The National Basketball Association, ABA—both denied Monday that they had ever had any contact with the two stars.

Saying he did not know yet who he'll sign with, Lanier said he would talk to his lawyer.

Phoenix took Wednesday and "maybe I'll have word for you then." However, he did say "there's more prestige and more competition in the NBA."

The NBA greatly increased its chances of getting Maravich when Atlanta picked him, at least according to his father, Press Maravich, who also coached him at LSU where Pete set the all-time major college scoring record and became almost a legend in Louisiana.

The big loser turned out to be San Francisco, which reportedly gave Atlanta the choice in return for the rights to Zelmo Beaty, former Atlanta ABA. The Warriors apparently have failed to change Beaty's mind, and now have nothing.

San Diego supposedly passed Maravich because of its need for a big forward—Tomjanovich is 6-7—and the cost of Pistol Pete, if it could land him anyway.

In fact, most of the clubs went for big men on the first round. Boston took 6-9 Dave Cowens of Florida State, Cincinnati picked 6-9 Sam Lacey of New Mexico State, Seattle

Without the much-talked about merger between the leagues, which it seems now must wait until at least next year, both Lanier and Maravich appear headed for contracts that will top the reported $1.4 million received by Lew Alcindor last year. This despite the knee injury suffered by Lanier in the NCAA championship tournament that required surgery.

While Lanier had been rumored headed for the NBA and Maravich for the ABA—Lanier was picked by the New York Nets and Maravich by the Carolina Cougars of the NBA—both denied Monday that they had ever had any contact with the two stars.

Court Hearings on Question Of Seattle Shift Underway

SEATTLE (AP) — Double barreled court action was in store today on the big question of whether a switch of the franchise of the Seattle Pilots to Milwaukee should be allowed.

A hearing on whether to grant a temporary injunction to prevent the sale and transfer of the American League baseball club was to continue before Superior Court Judge James Miffen at 3:30 a.m.

At 2 p.m., Washington State and Seattle were to present their reasons in U.S. District Court why they should not be prevented from interfering with sale of the club to Milwaukee.

Last Thursday, Pacific Northwest Sports, Inc., which owns the Pilots, petitioned the federal court to order the sale under the Bankruptcy Act.

William Walsh, representing Pacific Northwest Sports, said the Pilots owner would be destroyed if the team cannot be sold, and therefore, he said, Seattle still would have no major league baseball.

He said the league club owners are trying to recover their original investment by trying to sell the Pilots for $10.8 million.

During Monday's session in Superior Court, testimony showed the current owners of the Pilots would profit by $1 million by sale of the team to Milwaukee, and that a contract for such a sale was signed one day before a league meeting was scheduled in Tampa, Fla., during which the transfer was to have been voted upon.

Miffen said that as far as he could see Seattle residents don't want the club, and if it remained in the city, ticket sale and attendance wouldn't measure up to the hopes of those interested.

The Los Angeles Lakers, who finished fifth in the NBA last season, said they were interested in the team.

West, who led the league since Nov. 16, said injuries to me that I could do this at 31 years of age, especially since I've run for 31 years.

The following year, West was 31.7, his best scoring season, and Chamberlain finished at 35.5.

Lew Alcindor, Milwaukee's sensational rookie center, was second to West with a 28.5 average and San Diego's Elvin Hayes, last year's scoring champ, finished third at 27.5.

Hayes edged Baltimore's Wes Unseld for the rebounding championship. Hayes averaged 16.9 caroms to Unseld's 16.7.

Lenny Wilkens of Seattle led the league in assists with a 9.1 average. Flynn Robinson won the free throw title with a percentage of .88, and Johnny Green of Cincinnati won the field goal championship with a .536 percentage.

"What gets me is that cities all over America are seeking industries and Boston is kicking one out," he said.

Then noting that the Neponset site is within a few hundred feet of his office, he added, "I'll be able to look out my window and look at that rat-infested dump forever. If the council was interested in preserving that forever, hey did a good job."

The Minnesota Twins, who have been on nothing but a losing streak all spring, snapped another Monday behind the shaky hurling of Ron Perranoski. The Twins, West Division champions of the American League last year, opened the 1970 spring exhibition campaign with a string of nine straight losses before winning Monday, their first game losing skin came to a halt in a 4-3 victory over the Chicago White Sox.

And the staggering Twins, who with a 2-14 spring mark, almost getting superb one-hit pitching from rookie Bill Zepp over the first five innings.

After going ahead 4-3 on Charlie Manuel's run-scoring hit in the eighth, Perranoski, the star left-handed reliever, who was rocked for five hits and one run in 2 1/3 innings, loaded the bases with only one out.

But the cool Twins' fireman got Chicago's Tom McGraw on a foul pop up and fired a third strike past Bill Melton to end the thriller. Tony Oliva slashed a homer for the Twins earlier.

In other action, the Pittsburgh Pirates slammed five home runs and a three-hit pitching performance Monday, their first game losing skin came to a halt in a 4-3 victory over the Chicago White Sox.

The Pirates sluggers were Willie Stangell, Gene Alley, Jerry May, John Jeter and Bill Mazeroski. The New York Mets nipped St. Louis 4-3 on Cleon Jones' three-run inside-the-park homer, keying a four-run fourth inning, but the Mets' B squad dropped a 4-3 decision to the Philadelphia Phillies as Chris Short stopped them on three hits in seven innings. Larry Hale's run-scoring double provided the winner for the Phils.

Washington got shutout pitching from Casey Cox, Dick Such and Darold Knowles and Frank Howard drove in a run with a single in the Senators' 2-0 triumph over Baltimore.

Rookie John Mayberry's 500 foot homer off Sony Siebert lifted the Houston Astros to a 3-2 victory over Boston. Joe Peipone had a run-scoring single for the Astros.

Rookie Don Anderson stroked a run-scoring single, triggering a four-run sixth inning as the Cincinnati Reds moved to a 7-3 decision over Los Angeles.

Another rookie, Frank Baker of the New York Yankees, cracked a three-run seventh inning homer as the Yanks swept past Detroit 5-2.

Larry Brown knocked in all three Cleveland runs in the Indians' 3-2 triumph over Chicago while Sam McDowell hurled seven strong innings for the winners. Brown slapped a two-run single in the second and a run-scoring double in the seventh.

San Diego jumped out to a 3-0 lead and held off Oakland 3-3 with Danny Coombs tossing four shutout innings for the Padres and Seattle exploded for four eighth inning runs in a 5-3 triumph over California. Jim Hicks clouted a homer for the Angels.

In the only night game, Montreal came from behind to stop Atlanta 10-7.

Orlando Cepeda cracked a three-run homer, capping a six-run Braves third inning but the Expos went ahead with a three-run sixth keyed by Mary Staehle's triple. Staehle added two other hits while Rusty Staub smashed a homer for the Expos.

Orton Files Salary, Fee Report

KENNETT-Pemiscot County Sheriff Clyde Orton is now in compliance with the state's annual salary report law, following disclosure by Missouri Weekly that the county official had failed to submit his required listing of salaries and fees from public sources.

The Pemiscot County official, who faces an ouster suit before the Missouri Supreme Court as a result of a quo warranto suit filed by Atty. Gen. John C. Danforth, complied with the salary disclosure statute Monday, the day following Missouri Weekly's story.

Sheriff Orton's statement on his 1969 earnings was then mailed to the Secretary of State's office in Jefferson City, where an official said it was received March 18, two days after the report was signed by the Pemiscot County official.

The schedule completed by Orton shows he received $9,132.94 as statutory salary, the only fees or salaries he received as part of his gross compensation from Pemiscot County. Orton also reported receiving $1,600 for investigation mileage. Under the category of expenses for feeding county prisoners, Orton noted, "Net costs paid directly by County."

At the bottom of the form, Orton also noted, "All other fees and compensation was received by the deputies as part of their salary and expense account."

Under provisions of the Missouri statute requiring all county officials in the state to file with the Secretary of State their total compensation from public sources for a 12-month period, officials failing to comply with the deadline are ineligible to receive their salaries until compliance with the law is made.

The deadline for county officials to file their individual reports is February 15, and the deadline for the County Clerk in each county to file the complete county report is March 1.

Pemiscot County's total summary was received in the Secretary of State's office March 9. County Clerk Harold Jones said the list was late because he had been absent from his office for several days during February and compilation of statements from the various county officials had been delayed.

Sheriff Orton's statement filed with the Secretary of State's office listed no compensation for attending county Board of Equalization meetings, no additional salaries, no fees for attending court sessions and no civil or other retainable fees.

Orton also reported receiving no fees or allowances for feeding prisoners save the net costs paid by the county. No listing of the net costs was made.

Cape Man Hurt

In Illinois

CAIRO - A Cape Girardeau man, Jack Eaker, 30, sustained major injuries Thursday when the pickup truck he was driving was forced off of Route 146 three and one-half miles west of Jonesboro.

State police reported that Eaker was attempting to pass a semi-trailer truck when he was forced off the highway causing his truck to go out of control and overturn in a roadside ditch.

Revolution and Jesus - 1

The Puzzling "Zealot" Apostle

(Editor's note: Not unlike modern times, the era in which Jesus lived was swept with conflict, civil disobedience and rebellion. His purpose transcended that turmoil, yet he also was involved in it, its grinding poverty, desperate hopes and wild fevers. The following, the first of five Easter articles on revolutionary activity in his day, deals with a puzzling figure among his men, the Zealot apostle.)

By George W. Cornell
AP Religion Writer

A curtain of silence surrounds his role. He is named but not characterized. No word of his is recorded. His ways, attitudes and activities are unmentioned. But his party instigated revolution.

He also was one of the 12. Jesus deliberately chose him as an apostle — Simon the Zealot.

That designation, a "Zealot," is the only information specified about him in Scripture, but the accounts were set down at a time when fuller published details could have brought Christians under even harsher repressions by the Roman empire.

For the disturbing fact was, that the Zealots had fanned a massive rebellion for independence, crushed only by Rome's total destruction of ancient Israel.

"No master but God!" they vowed in resisting the alien pagan regime. They circulated clandestinely in Jerusalem, meeting behind locked doors, and formed guerrilla bands in the outlying hills to strike at the Roman oppressor.

"They have an inviolable attachment to liberty, and say that God is to be their only ruler and Lord," writes the Jewish historian of that time, Flavius Josephus. He adds that they were indifferent to "any kind of death, nor indeed to the tortures of their relations and friends, nor can any such fear make them call any man Lord."

The empire, however, asserted the lordship of Caesar. Despite the risks involved, the gospel writers themselves included oblique, uncritical references to the mounting resistance and also made clear Jesus' own intensifying conflict with the ruling establishment.

It was a period of pervasive unrest, of factional polarization, smoldering discontent, protests, flaring aspirations, disorders and violence, similar in some ways to the strife of the modern age.

"The truth will make you free," Jesus said.

"The time is fulfilled and the kingdom of God is at hand," he proclaimed as his ministry began, the apocalyptic ring of his words pointing to some fundamental, coming change in the existing order. It was a sizzling theme. Thousands of poor peasantry of the land, the Amhaarez, mistakenly expected him to himself lead a movement to break the foreign yoke and restore sovereignty to God's elect nation.

"The Spirit of the Lord is upon me, because he has appointed me to preach good news to the poor," he declared in his first sermon. "He has sent me to proclaim release to the captives . . . to set at liberty those who are oppressed."

Alarmed hometown neighbors in Nazareth, which was traversed by a road used regularly by Roman patrols in Galilee, forcibly hustled him out of the village. He later told his men:

"Behold, I send you out as sheep in the midst of wolves; so be as wise as serpents and innocent as doves . . . When they persecute you in one town, flee to the next . . . And do not fear those who kill the body but cannot kill the soul."

Besides the Zealot, some of his other apostles were passionate, temperamental men, including the impetuous Peter. Two others, James and John, called "sons of thunder," once suggested burning a village that refused to receive Jesus.

"Lord, you want us to bid fire come down from heaven and consume them?" they asked. He rebuked them for it.

His own attitude toward the flames of insurrection rising around him is never precisely delineated in the Biblical narratives. Indeed, he stressed peace, tenderness, forbearance. Yet, there also are reassuring notes of perilous initiatives.

"I came to cast fire on the earth, and would that it were already kindled!" he declared. "Do you think I have come to give peace on earth? No, I tell you, but rather division." He indicated the struggle would be between the committed and the indifferent.

There also were oblique allusions to the spiraling national conflict. Apparently referring to Rome's eventual degradation of the Temple by fire, pillage and heathen sacrifices there, Jesus is quoted in Mark 13:14:

"When you see the desolating sacrilege set up where it ought not to be (let the reader understand) then let those who are in Judea flee to the mountains." The mountain caves served as hideaways of the Zealot bands.

Mark's veiled parenthetical comment suggests the dangerous pressures under which he wrote for believers in Rome, where tradition says he gathered material from the apostle Peter before he was executed in 64 A. D.

But just what relationship, if any, did Jesus have with those relentless Zealot fighters for faith and freedom? The answer in the New Testament documents is obscure, perhaps purposely so, considering the precarious status of Christians then.

Yet the silence itself speaks. Although the record contains sharp criticisms by Jesus of other major factions of the time, especially the Rome-controlled collaborationist Temple hierarchy, not a word is set down against the Zealots.

They constituted a fiery, spreading underground in the populace, unswervingly dedicated to preserving God's covenant uncompromised by submission to the heathen military domination. They are men of great courage and spirit who are willing to die in defense of their national customs and laws with unshrinking bravery," wrote Philo, the Alexandrian Jewish philosopher of that period.

"Zealots for the Torah," they're sometimes called, resembling a phrase used in Acts 21 to describe the founding Christians in Jerusalem.

Once, to a question about whether some Galilean rebels slain while at worship by troops of the Roman governor Pontius Pilate had thus suffered for being worse sinners than others, Jesus said in Luke 13:3: "I tell you, No."

Seemingly, if he ever had re-regarded the Zealot cause, the gospel writers would have noted it, since this might have made life safer for Christians and allayed Roman suspicions that they were subversives.

Instead, however, the accounts simply mention, tersely and without elaboration, that Jesus picked a Zealot as one of his apostles, his closest companions, heirs to his mission and builders of his church.

Some interpreters suggest the Zealot previously had quit the incendiary movements, but the gospels don't say so. Tracing the various clues, British historian-theologian S. F. G. Brandon, in a recent book issued by Scribner's, "Jesus and the Zealots," concludes that a "bond of common sympathy" must have existed between them.

"The profession of Zealots had evidently been compatible with a close association with Jesus," Brandon says. But they pursued different courses. Both emphatically crucified along the roadsides, another 30,000 sold into slavery. Others fled to the mountains to fight back.

Sporadically, with rising fury, the turmoil continued into the period of Jesus' ministry and beyond it, moving toward the eventual cataclysm in 66 A. D. Numerous Zealot leaders, Jacob, Simon, Menahem, Athronges, Eleazar, Theudas, an Egyptian Jew, some claiming to be the Messiah to bring Godly rule, gathered fighting men in the wilderness, striking at the heathen government.

Again and again, Roman legions swept the countryside, beheading and crucifying ringleaders, slaughtering their followers, clapping thousands into chains to slave in the quarries. Troops of Pilate repeatedly smashed upheavals with savage brutality.

Once, questioners sought to trap Jesus into either an open avowal of defiance against the hated tribute tax or into servile endorsement of it by asking him whether citizens should pay it. He examined a denarius, noting Caesar's image, and gave his subtle answer:

"Render to Caesar the things that are Caesar's, and to God the things that are God's." The latter in Jesus' teaching as well as that of other Jewish rabbis, embraced all existence.

Some scholars have equated the Zealots with the Qumran community, the Essenes, a militantly pious Jewish sect whose scrolls of Scripture and battle manuals were found in modern times in caves near the Dead Sea.

"Be strong! Be bold! Be valiant men!" their orders exhorted. "Fear not in battle. Do not be alarmed nor tremble at them. Do not retreat . . . for they are the congregation of wickedness."

They, too, had their organized strongholds in the desert mountains. In the cities, where the Zealots had secret sympathizers, they initially operated covertly, stirring up dissent. But gradually, as the rebellion grew, they became more aggressive in the capitol itself. Their tactics in the city earned them a new name, the Sicarii, or Assassins, so called for the short, crooked dagger they carried under their cloaks, the Sicca, used for hit-run assassinations of Roman officers and collaborators.

Despite the bloodshed, their driving purpose was intensely religious. They saw subservience to a divinized Caesar as disloyalty to God, and they fought to restore the kingdom to Israel.

Jesus himself was tempted to pursue that path, of earthly power. When he was tempted in the desert before his ministry began, the devil offered him glory and royal dominion, but Jesus rejected those ambitions.

"You shall worship the Lord your God, and him only shall you serve," he said. It was the same

COLUMBIA-A tax reduction would be virtually guaranteed to 44.2 per cent of taxpayers in Scott County if the Missouri income tax revision Law is approved April 7.

Another 34.8 per cent of Scott County households would stand a good chance of paying less income tax under Proposition One.

Figures compiled by Sales Management Magazine show 44.2 per cent of all Scott County households have a cash income of less than $5,000 a year. 34.8 per cent have incomes of $5,000 to $9,999. And under the tax law revision, those who can least afford to bear the burden of financing needed state spending will pay less. The state financial burden is transferred to those who can afford it.

And increased standard deductions and exemptions over the next four years would lighten the tax load for everyone over a four-year period.

"Passage of Proposition One can mean more than just a tax saving for a significant number of Scott countians," Ed Bihr, chairman of Citizens for Proposition One (C. P. O.), said. "The added state revenue will enable the state to continue to provide needed public services."

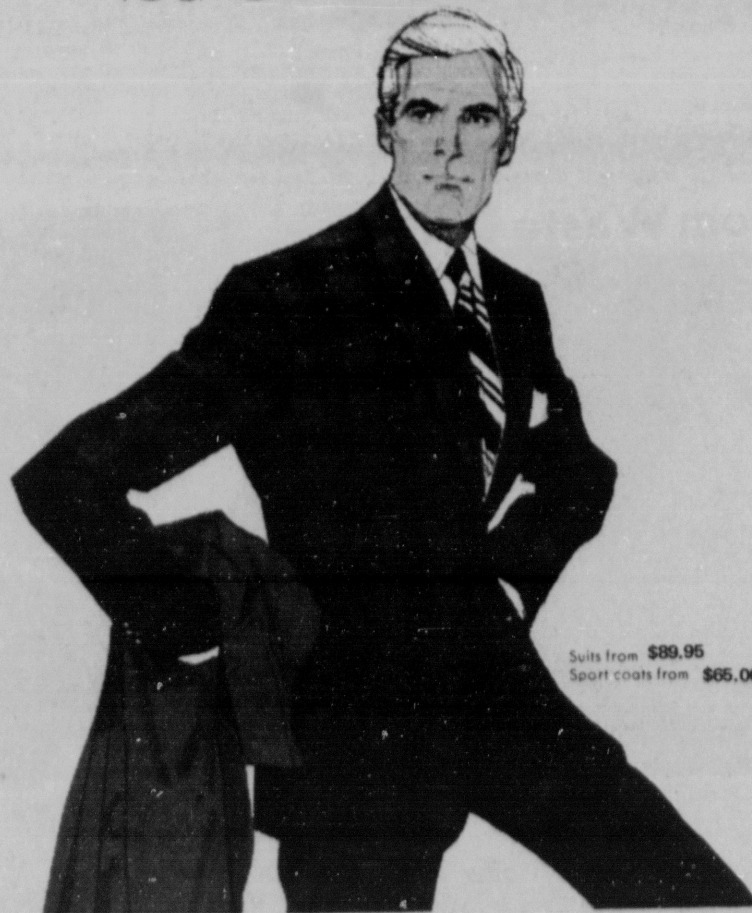

Most heavily dependant on the success of Proposition One are public schools and welfare programs, Bihr said.

"Public schools in every county rely on state money," Bihr said. "Without Proposition One the state cannot provide an increase in state aid to public schools. In fact, it cannot even keep pace with what it's providing now."

"And there are people in every county getting state welfare payments of some kind. The cost of the three major state welfare programs is continually rising. Aid to Dependent Children, Aid to the Permanently and Totally Disabled and Old Age Assistance may have to be cut if Proposition One fails," Bihr said.

"These are genuine needs of the people," he said. "And Missourians must respond to those needs. And for 62 per cent of the households in Scott County, responding to those needs and approving Proposition One will actually save the taxpayers money."

Project TRANSITION Offers Training For Civilian Jobs

A program known as Project TRANSITION was established in 1968 by the Department of Defense to provide servicemen with further education or skill training that could help them obtain meaningful employment upon return to civilian life.

The program's objective is to enable servicemen to compete for gainful employment after separation by providing them counseling, academic and vocational instruction, and job placement information during their last six months of military service, while still drawing Army pay.

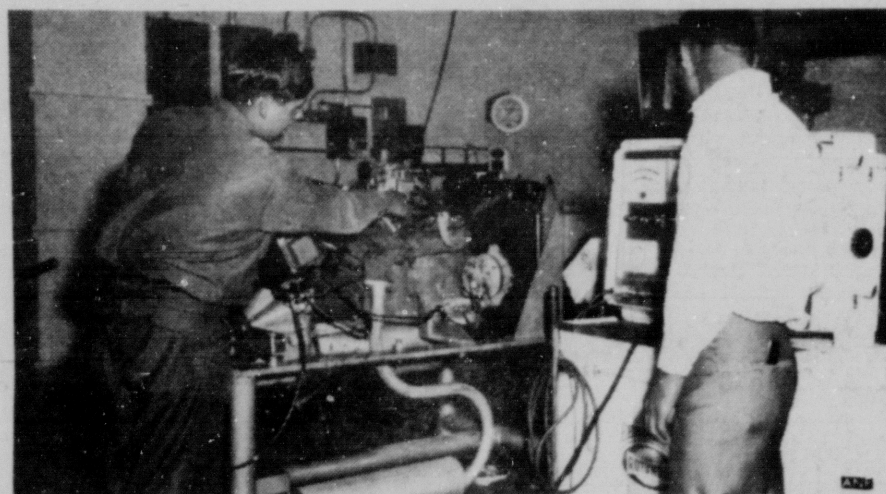

Project TRANSITION training is available at major Army installations in the continental United States. Training is provided by the Army, federal, state and local government agencies, business and industry.

Instruction is given in many different skills. Among them are auto and aircraft mechanic, electrician, postal clerk, draftsman, television repairman, welder, salesman, carpenter, mason and meatcutter.

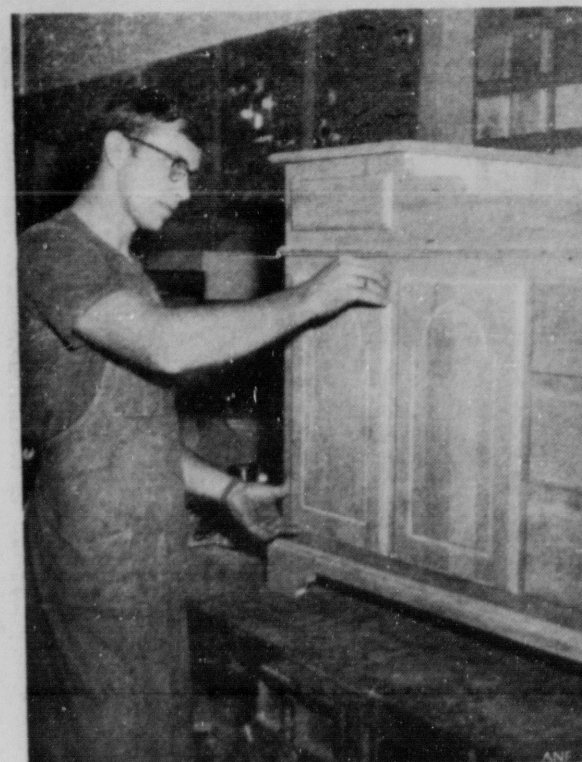

Details on Project TRANSITION are available at major Army education centers throughout the U.S. and soon will be available at education centers throughout the world. (ANF)

Butchered Reputations Live On After Death

By DICK KLEINER
West Coast Correspondent

LOS ANGELES—(NEA)—There may have been some other victims, that night when Sharon Tate and her friends were butchered.

Reputations. In the first, frantic, frightened days after the crime was discovered, it became fashionable to slander the dead. They talked about the wild parties in the house, about the drug scene, about the orgies. The implication was clear: the victims died as they lived.

Now, though, there are second thoughts. The killers, apparently, had no connection with the killed. The victims were innocent of any knowledge of why they were slain.

But it is difficult, if not impossible, to give back the reputations that were filched before. In the minds of the public, Sharon Tate, Jay Sebring, Voltyek Frokowsky and Abigail Folger (only the superinnocent victim, Stephen Parent, was spared being tarred by the slander brush) all pretty much lived so wildly that a tragedy was virtually inevitable.

One who feels this injustice particularly strongly is a man who should have been in that house that night. His name is Jerzy Kosinski. If it hadn't been for a goof-up in the Paris airport, he would probably be dead today. And his reputation, too.

Kosinski is a distinguished Polish-American novelist. His latest book, "Steps," won the 1969 National Book Award for fiction. He is a permanent fellow at Wesleyan University, in Middletown, Conn., and author-in-residence for 1970 at Princeton.

He is also an old friend of both Frokowsky and Miss Tate's husband, director Roman Polanski.

"The slander of Frokowsky," he says, "is a second murder."

It was Kosinski who introduced Frokowsky to Gibby Folger, the coffee heiress and language student. He thought they would get along. They did.

"They were both squares," Kosinski said.

Frokowsky, reputed to have been such a drug addict, wasn't, he insists. Kosinski says that Frokowsky had been in ill health since an automobile accident in Poland damaged a kidney. The victim had been a strong man, a swimming champion, but since the accident he had lost weight.

"He couldn't even drink coffee," Kosinski says. "He had given up cigarettes. When his doctor prescribed drugs, he couldn't take them. He couldn't have taken LSD or marijuana."

Kosinski says his friend was a man devoid of ambition or the need of money. He says if he had wanted money, he could have married Miss Folger. He was far from the fortune hunter some stories made him out to be.

Kosinski knew Sharon Tate, too, although not as well. He says he found her "a simple girl." Polanski often told him, he says, how amazed he was that his wife "is so unlike a European girl—she cannot tell a lie."

Kosinski knew what he meant. The author had married an American girl, too, and found that quality of complete truthfulness surprising.

"We have a saying in Poland," he says. "All the honest people vanished in the first World War." To us, honesty is startling.

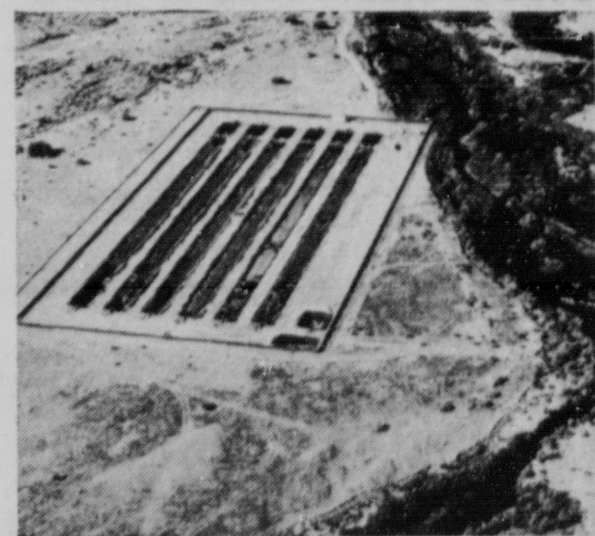

Kosinski was in Europe and planning a visit to Los Angeles, and he was scheduled to stay at the Polanski-Tate home. He cabled that he would arrive on Friday. But, when he left Paris, they mistakenly tagged his baggage for New York, so he stayed in New York a day to straighten that out.

The murders took place on Friday night. The police found his cable and, at first, thought his was the body in the car, instead of Parent's.

"There is an ancient Jewish-Christian trait," he says, "of finding fault with a murder victim. Since he died unnaturally, the presumption is that there must be something unnatural about his life, too."

Kosinski—and many others in Hollywood—believe that is wrong-thinking. But it may be too late to save the reputations of the four victims.

Clear Water From Waste

Predictions are that multiple reuse of water will be necessary by 1980 when water consumption for all uses in the nation will equal or exceed recoverable streamflow and ground water supply. Grass-covered basins called plant-soil filters may be an answer to that need. According to the Department of Agriculture, a pilot project near Phoenix, Ariz., top left, has determined that plant-soil filters can cleanse secondary sewage effluent at a fraction of cost of equivalent chemical treatment. At top right, an engineer holds a sample of reclaimed water. At bottom, researcher demonstrates fine texture of sand in dry river bed used by project. A plant-soil filter system of some 1,000 acres could service Phoenix and adjacent cities by the year 2000, turning waste matter into water suitable for irrigation, recreation or even human consumption.

All in A Day's Play

Marty Mim Mack, 8, of Santa Clara, Calif., is a good man to have on your team. The 1970 National
March of Dimes Poster
Boy puts his all into winning, although he was born without arms and his
right.

Like most of the 250,000
American children born
every year with birth defects, Marty is determined to live the life of a regular boy.

He is a bundle of energetic proof that medical care, rehabilitation — and spunk—can overcome shattering handicaps.

ARTILLERY DUELS between the North Vietnamese and besieged troops at Bu Prang Special Forces camp have been going on since October. A mound of shell casings, left, testifies to gigantic volume of fire power spent in defending the Cambodian-border outpost. At right, a wounded U.S. soldier is treated by a medic after an artillery attack.

THE VILLAGE SMITHY still stands in Surgoinsville, Tenn., where Will Sandidge has been a blacksmith for 53 years. He built the building he occupies 40 years ago and hasn't worried too much about it since. The dirt floor is covered with scrap metal and an organized confusion of equipment, supplies and junk surrounds him. Sandidge looks at a horseshoe and reflects: "Used to make 'em for a nickel or a dime and it took a lot of work. Costs you $2 now, and so light you can't do anything with 'em." It's just one of the changes noticed by the 73-year-old blacksmith of Hawkins County.

If You Were the Judge

If Freedom Accepted, Man Is Jailbreaker

By Jack Strauss, L.L.B.

Wilbur was interrupted in the middle of a sentence. Serving time in the local lock-up, he happened upon four other prisoners in the middle of a jailbreak. As a matter of caution rather than fondness for Wilbur, they insisted that he make the break with them over his objection.

Once outside, however, Wilbur quickly took to his unanticipated new freedom and strolled merrily into a nearby town, where he was promptly picked up by the police and charged with breaking out of jail.

"You've got to be kidding," insisted Wilbur in court. "I didn't leave voluntarily. If I had refused to go, those escaping prisoners would have taken me apart cell by cell. I had no choice. If I hadn't gone out, I'd have been done in!"

IF YOU WERE THE JUDGE, would you convict reluctant Wilbur of breaking jail?

This is how the judge ruled: YES! The judge held that even though Wilbur may have departed the jailhouse under threat of violence by his fellow prisoners, and thus not voluntarily, his failure to turn himself over to the authorities at the first available opportunity constituted the crime of breaking jail. (Based upon a 1965 California District Court of Appeals Decision)

Fifty summers and winters spent together is the proud record of Mr. and Mrs. J.W. Brown, who live about five miles northwest of Sikeston, and who Thursday celebrated their wedding anniversary.

The Prayer from The Upper Room

He that taketh not his cross, and followeth after me, is not worthy of me. (Matthew 10:38)

PRAYER: Father, we pray for the wisdom and courage to accept the cross Christ gives us to carry. Strengthen us to bear it and follow Thee, in love and obedience, in trust and hope. Through Christ our Savior, who taught us to pray, "Our Father who art in heaven . . . Amen."

Some popular expressions, like "calling a spade a spade," are of unknown origin, the reason for their entry into the language lost without a trace. On the other hand, "minting one's Ps and Qs" is traced to an old English alehouse book-keeping method. The World Almanac says. Taverns had slates headed with the letters P & Q to record the number of pints and quarts customers drank on credit.

We can't know where we're going if we don't know where we are.

On April 1, you're going to fill in your Census Form. If you think it's just a nuisance, think again. Because without it, your neighborhood, your state, your nation, would be a poorer place to live. If you think this is an overstatement, just consider the facts.

Take education: Your community needs years to plan, build, and staff extra school buildings. It can't wait until an unexpected influx of first-graders suddenly arrives at the door. Thanks to the Census it doesn't have to. The 1970 tally of one-year-olds will give your school board five years to prepare—so your school will be ready for your children when they're ready for school.

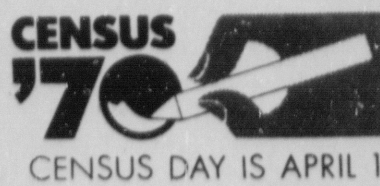

Take representation: Before you can be represented, you have to be counted—and the Census is the only chance you've got. Filling out your form makes sure you don't lose a voice in city, state, and local government. Make sure that the doctrine of "one man, one vote" applies to you.

Take housing: The answers you—and your neighbors—give on your Census form is the only way the government can find out whether your neighborhood needs help. That's the reason for those questions about bathrooms and age of buildings and so forth. And if you're living in substandard conditions, you can get help—but only if the government has the facts.

Take recreation: Old age and youth have very different needs when it comes to recreation. But the city can't make a decision between a park and a playground without knowing the age composition of the neighborhood—and only your Census Form can give the answer.

And so it goes. Your Census answers end up as valuable information—for your country, your community—and yourself. And every question you answer is completely confidential—not even the FBI can ever see an individual Census Form.

So don't hesitate to give the Census Bureau all the facts. It's absolutely essential if you want your community—and your country—to be a better place to live.

City Property Evaluation Project Revived

BENTON — Equalization of city property in Scott County appeared once again to have the green light Monday, although Harris Rodgers and Bill Lewis, two judges of the three-member county court, are having second thoughts about whether competent supervisory personnel can be hired to oversee the program.

Last year the state tax commission promised the county eight persons to supervise the equalization program, but earlier this year the state reneged on that promise as a result of the tax commission, appeared before the court Monday and said competent and sufficient workers and supervisors could be hired for a cost within the $20,000, the court last year earmarked for the project.

Ellis and Assessor Andy Halter said supervisory personnel, which reportedly would cost about $6,000, additional to the county, could be school teachers needing summer jobs or possibly upperclass college students. The workers would be drawn from high schools in the county, Ellis and Halter said.

Lewis, who was sworn in as judge of the first district on the court Monday morning, said he might favor the program as proposed by Ellis and Halter. "If competent supervisory personnel can be found and the county can pay them within the budget, I think we need to study the problem further."

"The principal thing we want is competency on the project,"

Rodgers said.

The county court avoided giving a blanket increase on property in the county last year by promising the state an equalization program would be carried out this year. The state last year threatened a blanket increase if the county did not raise assessments in the county by 10 per cent and carry out the proposed equalization to get all property on a 30 per cent ratio on replacement value as soon as possible.

Ellis estimated the project would take two months to complete after initiated June 1.

If carried out this year, reassessments on farm land, which has already been equalized, and city property would hit the books in 1971.

Chase of Juvenile Motorist Leads to Beer Party, 16 Arrests

NEW MADRID — A juvenile motorist being chased Saturday by police led pursuing officers to a beer party and the surprise arrest of 16, seven of whom are juveniles, 14 to 16.

highway and attempted to outrun the officers south down a country road, then east back to highway 61.

Ignoring the patrol's flashing red light, the driver crossed highway 61, failing to stop at a stop sign and drove east across the levee south of New Madrid to a mobile home at Triangle Concrete Company.

The driver jumped out of the car and ran into the trailer. The officers followed him into the trailer and discovered the beer party.

Deputy said James Pardon, an employee of Triangle Concrete Co., lives in the trailer. Pardon was arrested and charged with contributing to the delinquency of minors.

Judge Leo Hedgepeth fined Pardon $500 in magistrate court Monday, staying $400 of the fine, pending good behavior. Pardon was given a six months jail sentence and placed on probation for a year.

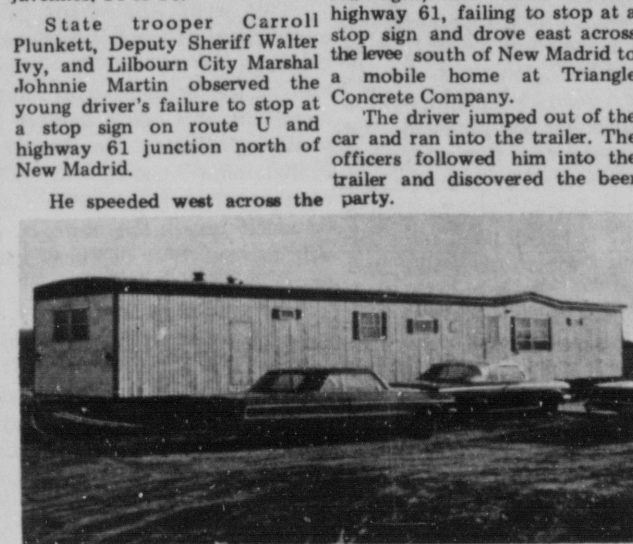

Others charged with illegal possession of intoxicating beer and fined $50 plus $20 court costs each were John Wayne Davis, 17, and Robert Allen Koon, 18, both of New Madrid; Donald Gene Cook, 18, route one, Portageville; and O. L. Kimes, 18, Portageville.

Fines and costs totaling $223 were assessed four New Madrid youths, Patrick Wesley Robertson, 17, George Amon Mann, 17, Johnnie L. Buchanan, 18, and Roy Chester Beasley, 19. They also were charged with possession of intoxicating beer.

Officers reported finding 100 empty and 15 unopened beer cans in the trailer.

The juvenile driver taken into custody was charged with two counts of failing to stop at a stop sign, careless and reckless driving, and failing to stop for a flashing red light. He was released to juvenile officer James J. Bloomfield Jr. along with two juvenile girls and four juvenile boys attending the party.

Four young people in the trailer at the time the officers arrived ran out. Two were apprehended and two escaped.

Scenic River Foes Set Meeting

JEFFERSON CITY (AP) — A meeting has been scheduled for Houston, Mo., Saturday to charter a state corporation of landowners against the scenic rivers initiative drive.

Charles R. Leick of Davisville, a livestock owner and attorney who has been a leader in the ranks of those opposing the scenic rivers proposal, announced the meeting.

He said the purpose would be to charter a corporation "not only to defeat the initiative petition but to explore with due deliberation what steps can be implemented to protect their (landowners') interests and at the same time protect the health, morals, education and general welfare of all with respect to the Ozark streams."

Canoe enthusiasts and other outdoor sports groups started the initiative drive last fall to get the voters to enact a scenic rivers law in the November general election. The proposal would give the State Conservation Department the administration of specified stretches of Missouri Ozark streams.

OATH OF OFFICE was administered Monday to Bill Lewis of Sikeston, left, who was appointed to fill the unexpired term of the late J. E. Childress as judge of the first district on the Scott county court. The oath was administered by County Clerk Phil Waldman. The term expires Jan. 1.

Postal Workers Return To Work in Many Cities

Striking postal workers returned to their jobs in Chicago, Detroit, Philadelphia and much of Connecticut and New Jersey today.

There were hints of a break in New York, where federal troops sorted mail on President Nixon's orders.

The Pentagon denied reports that troops who worked in New York post offices until 1 a.m. had been ordered to delay their return this morning. However, National Guardsmen who also were called up on the President's orders, were held in armories and were to be sent to the post offices after lunch.

In Washington, the Pentagon said it was making preliminary plans to withdraw the 2,600 regular troops as National Guardsmen and reservists are able to take over.

Military personnel planned no pickups from street boxes nor home deliveries. They will sell stamps and money orders at post office windows.

The post offices will accept outgoing mail in these categories: medical supplies, records and prescriptions, Social Security, pension, welfare and veterans' benefit checks; salary checks; mail for Vietnam, securities and other important financial papers and legal papers and documents.

Normal mail deliveries resumed in Philadelphia as 3,000 letter carriers returned to work in that city, last holdout in Pennsylvania.

All of Connecticut's major postal centers were back at full operation except Hartford, where clerks were picketing and scheduled to vote. Carriers had voted not to cross clerks' picket lines.

Teacher Walkout Closes Bluff Schools

POPLAR BLUFF, Mo. AP — All 12 public schools were ordered closed today after most of the city's 290 teachers complied with a Monday night walkout vote of the Community Teachers Association and stayed off the job.

About 175 teachers, members of the Association, established pickets at the schools and also at an area where school buses are kept overnight.

Police aided bus drivers in attempting to cross the picket lines and took into custody three teachers, who were later released without charge.

Supt. Fred M. Morrow ordered the city's 12 schools closed "until this matter is resolved." Enrollment for the schools was 5,507 at beginning of the current school term.

The picketing, conducted by about 175 teachers at the bus area and the schools, followed a breakdown in negotiations between the CTA and the city's school board during the weekend.

Pay for the teachers ranges from $5,700 beginning salaries. The teachers have sought salaries ranging from $6,300 starting pay plus a salary index.

E. T. Peters, school board president, presented a board offer of $6,100 starting pay Sunday night contingent upon passage April 7 of the revised Missouri income tax referendum issue.

Dear Ak.: Your letter doesn't indicate whether you are male or female, but I'll risk it. Here's a kiss from Chicago. X. Got it?

Dear Ann Landers: Please tell people to keep their mouths shut and not tell children things they ought not know. Our oldest child, a girl age 10, came home crying last Friday. She was truly heartbroken. A neighbor -- an adult woman and herself the mother of three -- informed Gwen that she looked enough like her daddy to be his real child. Gwen asked what she meant by that and was told, "Your Mom and Daddy adopted you, didn't you know?" Gwen did not know and she accused the woman of making up a lie. When the child came home and asked me to tell her the truth I was shocked. I had to tell her she was adopted, something I hadn't planned on doing for another five years.

Gwen has been withdrawn and uncommunicative ever since. She keeps wanting to know where her real mommy and daddy are, and why they gave her away.

Everything was lovely until that neighbor opened up her big mouth. Now we have a depressed and unhappy little girl on our hands. Please print this as a lesson to others who feel inclined to mess up lives. ---Wheeling

Dear Wheel: Put the blame where it belongs, lady. Adopted children should be told as soon as they are old enough to talk, that they were chosen. They should be made to feel special. They should also be told that adoptive parents always feel fortunate because there are long waiting lists and many couples must wait for years.

If you had done this, no big-mouth neighbor could have created the problem you are now facing. I am prying your letter so others will not make the mistake of waiting until a youngster is half grown before he is told the truth.

Dear Ann Landers: About seven months ago my husband started to write to a 14-year-old girl who wanted a pen pal. Clyde found her name in a magazine. I thought it was hilarious. He sent her a picture of our 16-year-old nephew -- passed it off as himself, and invented a very believable character.

The joke ended two weeks ago when I learned Clyde has been writing six young girls in five different states. I found the letters in his tackle box. He has been using a Post Office box address.

Clyde is 54 years old and seems to be getting more pleasure out of this letter game than is decent. He insists it is harmless because he will never see these girls. I'm concerned. Should I be? --- Worcester

NBA Joins Bidding for Lanier, Maravich, Etc.

NEW YORK (AP) — The the Carolina Cougars of the chose 6-8 Jim Ard of Cincinnati, National Basketball Association, ABA—both denied Monday that Cleveland went for 6-6 John Johnson of Iowa.

Saying he did not know yet who he'll sign with, Lanier said he would talk to his lawyer Wednesday and "maybe I'll have word for you then." However, he did say "there's more prestige and more competition in the NBA."

The NBA greatly increased its chances of getting Maravich when Atlanta picked him, at least according to his father, Press Maravich, who also coached him at LSU where Pete set the all-time major college scoring record and became almost a legend in Louisiana.

The big loser turned out to be San Francisco, which reportedly gave Atlanta the choice in return for the rights to Zelmo Beaty, former Atlanta center who is headed for the ABA. The Warriors apparently, have failed to change Beaty's mind, and now have nothing.

San Diego supposedly passed Maravich because of its need for a big forward—Tomjanovich is 6-7—and the cost of Pistol Pete, if it could land him anyway.

In fact, most of the clubs went for big men on the first round. Boston took 6-9 Dave Cowens of Florida State, Cincinnati picked 6-9 Sam Lacey of New Mexico State, Seattle

Now, with the ABA already having signed nine players, including highly regarded Dan Issel of Kentucky, Charlie Scott of North Carolina and Rick Mount of Purdue, the NBA can finally begin competing in earnest.

Lanier, a 6-foot-11, 265-pound domineering center with a light shooting touch, and Maravich, Louisiana State's three-time All-American who is possibly basketball's greatest attraction, are the big prizes still on the vine.

Without the much-talked about merger between the leagues, which it seems now must wait until at least next year, both Lanier and Maravich appear headed for contracts that will top the reported $1.4 million received by Lew Alcindor last year. This despite the knee injury suffered by Lanier in the NCAA championship tournament that required surgery.

While Lanier had been rumored headed for the NBA and Maravich for the ABA—Lanier was picked by the New York Nets and Maravich by

Court Hearings on Question Of Seattle Shift Underway

SEATTLE (AP) — Double barreled court action was in store today on the big question of whether a switch of the franchise of the Seattle Pilots to Milwaukee should be allowed.

A hearing on whether to grant a temporary injunction to prevent the sale and transfer of the American League baseball club was to continue before Superior Court Judge James Mifflin at 9:30 a.m.

At 2 p.m., Washington State and Seattle were to present their reasons in U.S. District Court why they should not be prevented from interfering with sale of the club to Milwaukee interests.

Last Thursday, Pacific Northwest Sports, Inc., which owns the Pilots, petitioned the federal court to order the sale under the Bankruptcy Act.

William Walsh, representing Pacific Northwest Sports, said the Pilots owner would be destroyed if the team cannot be sold, and therefore, he said, Seattle still would have no major league baseball. He said the league club owners are trying to recover their original investment by trying to sell the Pilots for $10.5 million.

During Monday's session in Superior Court, testimony showed the current owners of the Pilots would profit by $1 million by sale of the team to Milwaukee, and that a contract for such a sale was signed one day before a league meeting was scheduled in Tampa, Fla., during which the transfer was to have been voted upon.

Mifflin said that as far as he could see Seattle residents don't want the club, and if it remained in the city, ticket sale and attendance wouldn't measure up to the hopes of those interested.

The judge said any decision he might make would be outweighed by the one on the bankruptcy angle.

Alfred Schwegge, a Seattle lawyer who warded off the league's vote in Tampa by obtaining legal restraints there, and who filed the first request for a restraining order in Seattle, testified the Pilot owners reached an agreement on the sale to Milwaukee interests March 9, the day before the Tampa meeting.

Dewey Soriano, president of the Pilots, testified that an agreement to sell the Pilots to Milwaukee for $10.5 million would leave the owners of the Pilots with the responsibility of settling a lease agreement with the city and making a $150,000 indemnity payment to the Pacific Coast League.

Mifflin asked if the price would cover such payments, and when Soriano said it would, the judge said the sale would leave a profit of about $1 million for investors.

The first witness, Seattle restaurant operator Dave Cohn, told Mifflin he could round up a group within several months to buy the Pilots if the team is kept in Seattle this coming season.

Cohn said the group would be willing to pay $5.5 million, which was the original cost of the franchise, but the price was negotiable.

Cohn said he believes part of the reason two other Seattle groups were attempting to buy the franchise failed was because the price was too high. Those price tags were $10.4 million and $9.5 million.

"I don't think we should have to bail management out to pay for their losses," Cohn said.

He added that he believes the problems of the year-old team are due to mismanagement.

Cohn headed a Seattle delegation that went to Chicago in October, 1967, to ask the league to give Seattle a baseball franchise.

He is a member of the Washington State Stadium Commission, and he told Mifflin that when Seattle was awarded a franchise for the 1969 season the only condition attached was that the league would have the right to pull out if a $40 million bond issue for a domed stadium failed to gain approval or if construction of the stadium wasn't started by the end of 1970.

Stadium construction plans are on schedule, Cohn said, and another witness, State Sen. Joel Pritchard of Seattle, testified the state has paid $1 million on retirement of the bond issue.

The Minnesota Twins, who have been on nothing but a losing streak all spring, snapped another Monday behind the strike pop up and fired a third shaky hurling of Ron Perranoski. The Twins, West Division champions of the American League last year, opened the spring exhibition campaign with a string of nine straight losses before winning Monday, their first in a 4-3 victory over the Chicago White Sox.

And the staggering Twins, the Pirates slugger were Willie with a 2-4 spring mark, almost blew it in the ninth inning after getting superb one-hit pitching from rookie Bill Zepp over the first five innings.

After going ahead 4-3 on Charlie Manuel's run-scoring hit in the eighth, Perranoski, the star left-handed reliever, who was rocked for five hits and one run in 2-1-3 innings, loaded the bases with only one out.

But the Tom Terrill's fireman got Chicago's Tom McGraw on a fly pop up and fired a third strike past Bill Melton to end the thriller. Tony Oliva slashed a homer for the Twins earlier.

In other action, the Pittsburgh Pirates slammed five home runs and three-hit pitching from big Bob Veale in a 15-7 rout of Kansas City. Veale, going half in a 4-3 victory over the Twins, and his first walk of the spring.

The Pirates slugger were Willie with a 2-4 spring mark, almost blew it in the ninth inning after getting superb one-hit pitching from rookie Bill Zepp over the first five innings.

The New York Mets nipped St. Louis 4-3 on Cleon Jones' three-run inside-the-park homer, keying a four-run fourth inning but the Mets' B squad dropped a 4-3 decision to the Philadelphia Phillies as Chris Short stopped them on three hits in seven innings. Larry Hale's run-scoring double provided the winner for the Phils.

Washington got shutout pitching from Casey Cox, Dick Such and Darold Knowles and Frank Howard drove in a run with a single in the Senators 2-0 triumph over Baltimore.

Rookie John Maberly's 500 foot homer off Sony Siebert lifted the Houston Astros to a 3-2 victory over Boston. Joe Pepitone had a run-scoring single for the Astros.

Rookie Don Anderson stroked a run-scoring single, triggering a four-run sixth inning as the Cincinnati Reds moved to a 7-3 decision over Los Angeles.

Another rookie, Frank Baker of the New York Yankees, cracked a three-run seventh inning homer as the Yanks swept past Detroit 5-2.

Larry Brown knocked in all three Cleveland runs in the Indians 3-2 triumph over Chicago while Sam McDowell hurled seven strong innings for the winners. Brown slapped a two-run single in the second and a run-scoring double in the seventh.

San Diego jumped out to a 4-0 lead and held off Oakland 4-3 with Danny Coombs tossing four shutout innings for the Padres and Seattle exploded for four eighth inning runs in a 5-3 triumph over California. Jim Hicks clouted a homer for the Angels.

In the only night game, Montreal came from behind to stop Atlanta 10-7.

Orlando Cepeda cracked a three-run homer, capping a six-run Braves' third inning but the Expos went ahead with a three run sixth keyed by Marv Staehle's triple. Staehle added two other hits while Rusty Staub smashed a homer for the Expos.

ABA Head Predict Common Draft in '71

NEW YORK (AP) — The American Basketball Association kept its money bags ready and waiting today in case Pete Maravich and Bob Lanier want to dip in, but Commissioner Jack Dolph predicted this would be the last bidding war between the ABA and the rival National Basketball Association.

"I predict there will be a common draft next year," Dolph said Monday after his 3-year-old league completed its annual player draft at the same time the NBA was holding its draft a mile downtown.

"We have proven our ability to sign players," Dolph said, "and, if need be, we'll prove it again."

The implication was that the two leagues would merge before too long, just as a sky-high bidding war forced the merger of the National and American Football Leagues.

"We have been negotiating with the NBA in good faith," Dolph said. "We have broad areas of agreement and much

Boston Council Dashes Patriot Stadium Hopes

BOSTON (AP) — The Boston City Council has dashed the Boston Patriots' hopes for a $16 million, 55,000-seat stadium in Neponset, near the Quincy line.

"As far as I'm concerned, this eliminates Boston as a home for the Patriots," said President Billy Sullivan of the National Football League team after the council rejected the stadium plan by a 7-2 vote Monday night.

"What gets me is that cities all over America are seeking industries and Boston is kicking one out," he said.

Then noting that the Neponset site is within a few hundred feet of his office, he added, "I'll be able to look out my window and look at that rat-infested dump forever. If the council was interested in preserving that forever, they did a good job."

LEARNING HOW—Sfc William A. Dunkelberger of Richmond, Va., prepares for civilian work as a meatcutter through the Army's Project TRANSITION program at Ft. Eustis, Va.

TROUBLE SHOOTER—Sp5 Kenneth A. Leibert, Alexandria, Va., repairs a Xerox machine during Project TRANSITION training at Davison Airfield, Ft. Belvoir, Va.

Project TRANSITION Offers Training For Civilian Jobs

A program known as Project TRANSITION was established in 1968 by the Department of Defense to provide servicemen with further education or skill training that could help them obtain meaningful employment upon return to civilian life.

The program's objective is to enable servicemen to compete for gainful employment after separation by providing them counseling, academic and vocational instruction, and job placement information during their last six months of military service, while still drawing Army pay.

Project TRANSITION training is available at major Army installations in the continental United States. Training is provided by the Army, federal, state and local government agencies, business and industry.

Instruction is given in many different skills. Among them are auto and aircraft mechanic, electrician, postal clerk, draftsman, television repairman, welder, salesman, carpenter, mason and meatcutter.

Details on Project TRANSITION are available at major Army education centers throughout the U.S. and soon will be available at education centers throughout the world. (ANF)

NEW TRADE—Sp4 William P. Townsend, Metairie, La., practices the art of welding while training under the Project TRANSITION program at Ft. Eustis, Va.

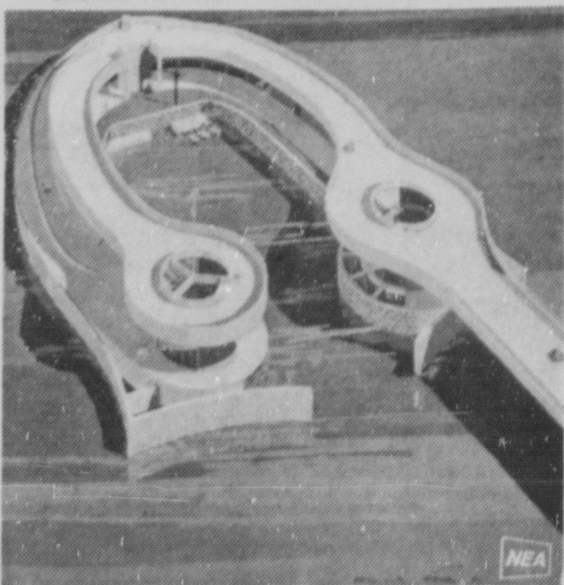

FUTURE MECHANICS—Sgt. David L. Reno, Dearborn Heights, Mich., makes adjustments on test equipment as Sp4 David L. Miller, Quantico, Va., reads the gauges. The soldiers plan to become mechanics upon returning to civilian life and are receiving training in the Army under the Project TRANSITION program at Ft. Belvoir, Va.

CABINET MAKING—Sp4 Frank Jackson, St. Joseph, Mo., nears completion of a cabinet he built while training under the Project TRANSITION program at Ft. Eustis, Va.

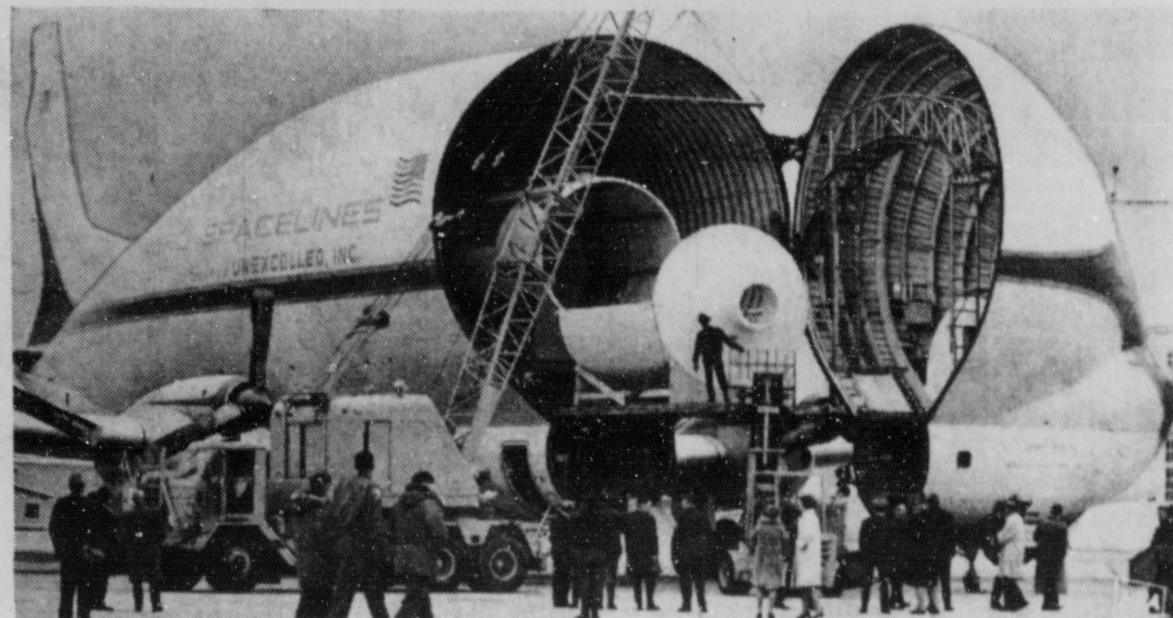

BULLDOZER OPERATOR—Sp5 Leonard M. Erickson, Washougal, Wash., demonstrates his skill with a bulldozer. After four months of training under the Project TRANSITION program at Ft. Eustis, Va., Specialist Erickson qualified as a heavy equipment operator.

TO PROBE THE OCEAN—Artist's sketch of proposed $18.6-million Scripps Institute of Oceanography's experimental inshore oceanographic facility shows design of 200 x 300-foot horseshoe-shaped island. Extending into Pacific Ocean, a 2,400-foot bridge, 30 feet wide on top, would connect island with Scripps campus in La Jolla, Calif. Island-undersea laboratory complex would be supported on four 40-foot tubular legs from seafloor bedrock in 80 feet of water. Legs would serve as research laboratories. A calm-water harbor would accommodate research vessels up to 90 feet in length, submersibles, buoys and other oceanographic research equipment.

SHE BENDS BACKWARDS to please. Lynn Fair, 19, practices an oriental dance in a tropical setting at Florida's Sunken Gardens in St. Petersburg.

"SUPER GUPPY" is a plane manufactured primarily to carry space vehicle components made in various parts of the country to the space center at Cape Kennedy, Fla. The cargo section has an interior diameter of 25 feet and is made accessible by a revolutionary swing-away nose and cockpit section.

Butchered Reputations Live On After Death

By DICK KLEINER
West Coast Correspondent

LOS ANGELES—(NEA)—There may have been some other victims, that night when Sharon Tate and her friends were butchered.

Reputations.

In the first, frantic, frightened days after the crime was discovered, it became fashionable to slander the dead. They talked about the wild parties in the house, about the drug scene, about the orgies. The implication was clear: the victims died as they lived.

Now, though, there are second thoughts. The killers, apparently, had no connection with the killed. The victims were innocent of any knowledge of why they were slain.

But it is difficult, if not impossible, to give back the reputations that were filched before. In the minds of the public, Sharon Tate, Jay Sebring, Voityek Frokowsky and Abigail Folger (only the superinnocent victim, Stephen Parent, was spared being tarred by the slander brush) all pretty much lived so wildly that a tragedy was virtually inevitable.

One who feels this injustice particularly strongly is a man who should have been in that house that night. His name is Jerzy Kosinski. If it hadn't been for a goof-up in the Paris airport, he would probably be dead today. And his reputation, too.

Kosinski is a distinguished Polish-American novelist. His latest book, "Steps," won the 1969 National Book Award for fiction. He is a permanent fellow at Wesleyan University, in Middletown, Conn., and author-in-residence for 1970 at Princeton.

He is also an old friend of both Frokowsky and Miss Tate's husband, director Roman Polanski.

"The slander of Frokowsky," he says, "is a second murder."

It was Kosinski who introduced Frokowsky to Gibby Folger, the coffee heiress and language student. He thought they would get along. They did.

"They were both squares," Kosinski said.

Frokowsky, reputed to have been such a drug addict, wasn't, he insists. Kosinski says that Frokowsky had been in ill health since an automobile accident in Poland damaged a kidney. The victim had been a strong man, a swimming champion, but since the accident he had lost weight.

"He couldn't even drink coffee," Kosinski says. "He had given up cigarettes. When his doctor prescribed drugs, he couldn't take them. He couldn't have taken LSD or marijuana."

Kosinski says his friend was a man devoid of ambition or the need of money. He says if he had wanted money, he could have married Miss Folger. He was far from the fortune hunter some stories made him out to be.

Kosinski knew Sharon Tate, too, although not as well. He says he found her "a simple girl." Polanski often told him, he says, how amazed he was that his wife "is so unlike a European girl—she cannot tell a lie."

Kosinski knew what he meant. The author had married an American girl, too, and found that quality of complete truthfulness surprising.

"We have a saying in Poland," he says. "All the honest people vanished in the first World War. To us, honesty is startling."

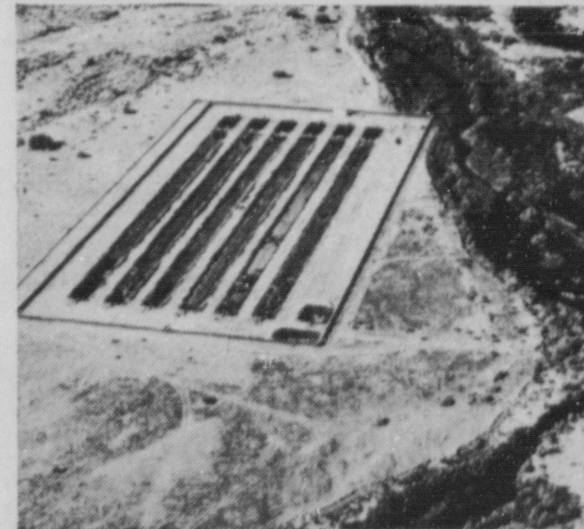

Kosinski was in Europe and planning a visit to Los Angeles, and he was scheduled to stay at the Polanski-Tate home. He cabled that he would arrive on Friday. But, when he left Paris, they mistakenly tagged his baggage for New York, so he stayed in New York a day to straighten that out.

The murders took place on Friday night. The police found his cable and, at first, thought his was the body in the car, instead of Parent's.

"There is an ancient Jewish-Christian trait," he says, "of finding fault with a murder victim. Since he died unnaturally, the presumption is that there must be something unnatural about his life, too."

Kosinski—and many others in Hollywood—believe that is wrong-thinking. But it may be too late to save the reputations of the four victims.

Clear Water From Waste

Predictions are that multiple reuse of water will be necessary by 1980 when water consumption for all uses in the nation will equal or exceed recoverable streamflow and ground water supply. Grass-covered basins called plant-soil filters may be an answer to that need. According to the Department of Agriculture, a pilot project near Phoenix, Ariz., top left, has determined that plant-soil filters can cleanse secondary sewage effluent at a fraction of cost of equivalent chemical treatment. At top right, an engineer holds a sample of reclaimed water. At bottom, researcher demonstrates fine texture of sand in dry river bed used by project. A plant-soil filter system of some 1,000 acres could service Phoenix and adjacent cities by the year 2000, turning waste matter into water suitable for irrigation, recreation or even human consumption.

Marty Mim Mack, 8, of

good man to have on your team. The 1970 National
March of Dimes Poster
Boy puts his all into win-

right.

Like most of the 250,000
American children born
every year with birth defects, Marty is determined to live the life of a regular boy.

He is a bundle of energetic proof that medical care, rehabilitation - and

ARTILLERY DUELS between the North Vietnamese and besieged troops at Bu Prang Special Forces camp have been going on since October. A mound of shell casings, left, testifies to gigantic volume of fire power spent in defending the Cambodian-border outpost. At right, a wounded U.S. soldier is treated by a medic after an artillery attack.

THE VILLAGE SMITHY still stands in Surgoinville, Tenn., where Will Sandidge has been a blacksmith for 53 years. He built the building he occupies 40 years ago and hasn't worried too much about it since. The dirt floor is covered with scrap metal and an organized confusion of equipment, supplies and junk surrounds him. Sandidge looks at a horseshoe and reflects: "Used to make 'em for a nickel or a dime and it took a lot of work. Costs you $2 now, and so light you can't do anything with 'em." It's just one of the changes noticed by the 73-year-old blacksmith of Hawkins County.

If You Were the Judge

If Freedom Accepted, Man Is Jailbreaker

By Jack Strauss, LL.B.

Wilbur was interrupted in the middle of a sentence. Serving time in the local lock-up, he happened upon four other prisoners in the middle of a jailbreak. As a matter of caution rather than fondness for Wilbur, they insisted that he make the break with them over his objection.

Once outside, however, Wilbur quickly took to his unanticipated new freedom and strolled merrily into a nearby town, where he was promptly picked up by the police and charged with breaking out of jail.

"You've got to be kidding," insisted Wilbur in court. "I didn't leave voluntarily. If I had refused to go, those escaping prisoners would have taken me apart cell by cell. I had no choice. If I hadn't gone out, I'd have been done in!"

IF YOU WERE THE JUDGE, would you convict reluctant Wilbur of breaking jail?

This is how the judge ruled: YES! The judge held that even though Wilbur may have departed the jailhouse under threat of violence by his fellow prisoners, and thus not voluntarily, his failure to turn himself over to the authorities at the first available opportunity constituted the crime of breaking jail. Some popular expressions, like "calling a spade a spade," are of unknown origin, the reason for their entry into the language lost without a trace. On the other hand, "minting one's Ps and Qs" is traced to an old English alehouse book-keeping method. The World Almanac says. Taverns had slates headed with the letters P & Q to record the number of pints and quarts customers drank on credit.

We can't know where we're going if we don't know where we are.

On April 1, you're going to fill in your Census Form. If you think it's just a nuisance, think again. Because without it, your neighborhood, your state, your nation, would be a poorer place to live. If you think this is an overstatement, just consider the facts.

Take education: Your community needs years to plan, build, and staff extra school buildings. It can't wait until an unexpected influx of first-graders suddenly arrives at the door. Thanks to the Census it doesn't have to. The 1970 tally of one-year-olds will give your school board five years to prepare—so your school will be ready for your children when they're ready for school.

Take representation: Before you can be represented, you have to be counted—and the Census is the only chance you've got. Filling out your form makes sure you don't lose a voice in city, state, and local government. Make sure that the doctrine of "one man, one vote" applies to you.

Take housing: The answers you—and your neighbors—give on your Census Form is the only way the government can find out whether your neighborhood needs help. That's the reason for those questions about bathrooms and age of buildings and so forth. And if you're living in substandard conditions, you can get help—but only if the government has the facts.

Take recreation: Old age and youth have very different needs when it comes to recreation. But the city can't make a decision between a park and a playground without knowing the age composition of the neighborhood—and only your Census Form can give the answer.

And so it goes. Your Census answers end up as valuable information—for your country, your community—and yourself. And every question you answer is completely confidential—not even the FBI can ever see an individual Census Form.

So don't hesitate to give the Census Bureau all the facts. It's absolutely essential if you want your community—and your country—to be a better place to live.

Dear Poor Charlie,
I share your admiration of Governor Hearnes and your awareness of Missouri's financial plight, as expressed recently in this paper. However, I differ with your opinion as to the fairness of a sales tax as opposed to the income tax.

Assuming that the word 'poor' attached to your name signifies your body structure rather than your income, I am sorry that you are not one of the silent majority of low to upper middle incomes who stand to benefit from the tax revision bill.

I am sure that you have already checked the proposed income tax rates and compared its cost to you with what you would pay through a one cent increase in the sales tax which would cost everyone ten dollars on every thousand spent. Could it be that 'poor' refers to your ability to add and subtract?

Respectfully,
Robert H. Forister

Good morning Charlie:

I want to congratulate and command you on the GREAT front page of your Fifteenth Annual Progress Edition on February 28.

It is by far the most beautiful you have published so far— even Joe Majersky, editorial writer for the News-Tribune here (who hates green and Irish and has said so editorially several times) admits it is great!

Warm personal regards.

Cordially,

Dear Mr. Blanton,

I have been very concerned about different articles and news items of "off-color" taste printed in your newspaper. Many people have written and given their disapproving opinions concerning the jokes on your editorial page. I share their feelings on this matter. However, I didn't feel the outrageous indignation I feel now, until I read your editorial in column one on March 17th. This was the article pertaining to the obscenity printed by college students and the courageous printer who refused to print their material. As I recall, you praised this printer for his "moral stamina to stand up to rebellious students." You even went so far as to compare him with another craftsman, a carpenter who lived his life as an example for others— Jesus Christ.

I didn't know whether to laugh or cry as I read on to the very next line which was an anecdote by a man which said, "A real sneak thief is a man steals another man's wife piece by piece."

Really, now, Mr. Blanton! Get on one side of the fence or the other and stay there! You are advocating one thing and printing another.

I agree with your rights to print what you please, but please make some sort of sense out of it!

I realize that you, personally do not put the jokes in the paper, but I still hold you responsible for the printing of them.

Please, won't you have this same courage of the printer when you spoke of in your editorial and stand up to this person who writes the jokes for your newspaper. You, too could be used as an example like the good carpenter. This would be especially appropriate as the Easter season is approaching. We need as many "Carpenter" examples as we can find.

Thank you,
Sincerely Yours,

Dear Sir:

Sports fans at Portageville, on your paper for sports Mo., have for years held the reporters?

COME AND GET IT says Jim Green and Paul Jobe, two Rotarians in the chili serving line in the background Monday at American Legion hall. Identified in line are the Rev. Pipes Jones, vicar of St. Paul Episcopal church, and behind him Mrs. George Hale and her daughter-in-law, Mrs. Brenda Hale. The girl in left foreground and woman and man at right are not identified.

Daily Sikeston Standard in high regard. This holds true for all sections except the sports department, which has for years raked the Portageville athletic program over hot coals, not via biased reporting, but by way of lack of publicity.

Mr. Ron Jaynes' animosity toward Portageville basketball and football is a trademark of Standard sports reporting. Portageville had its best cage season since 1953, and some of the best talent in southeast Missouri. The apotheosis of Mr. Jaynes' reporting is reflected in his March 18 spread.

Fact No. 1: Not one word was mentioned in the March 18 wrap-up on southeast Missouri basketball about Portageville's record, players, and '69-'70 accomplishments.

Fact No. 2: Portageville cagers defeated six of the teams honored in the "Final Cage Poll," the epitome of Mr. Jaynes' basketball knowledge.

Fact No. 3: The Bulldogs soundly whipped the number-3 ranked team— Cape Central— enroute to winning first place in the Cape Holiday Tourney. Four teams selected to the "Final Cage Poll" were participants in the Cape Holiday Tourney, a tournament Mr. Jaynes referred to as void of championship teams; yet, he acknowledges them "champions" in his final poll.

Fact No. 4: Portageville had a better seasonal record (17-8) than did two of the teams selected to the "Top Ten": Cape Central (16-9) and Sikeston (10-9). (Sikeston! What a joke! Of course, Mr. Jaynes would claim Sikeston met stiffer competition, playing more Class L teams, and all. Sure! There were several powerhouse Class L teams in southeast Missouri this year. Name one!) Portageville's eight losses were doled out by only five teams: New Madrid, Malden, Matthews, North Pemiscot and Parma, all five excellent teams. In re-matches the Bulldogs later defeated Parma and North Pemiscot.

Fact No. 5: Bulldog ace Randy Long, 6-4 senior, was named to the All-County and All-District teams this year (he was voted unanimously to the All-County team by county coaches). He maintained a 15.7 scoring average, a better average than nine of Mr. Jaynes' SEMO "honorees."

Now these facts cannot be overlooked or brushed over lightly. Portageville sports fans would like to know why Portageville basketball has been slighted and coverage suppressed to a minimum. It is regretful that an organ supposedly devoted to free and unbiased reporting has as one of its chiefs a reporter who colors his pages resulting from too many years of with prejudiced crayons. Suppressing this letter from the "Letters to the Editor" column will only further illustrate unfair coverage for Portageville. Looking forward to next year and fair coverage, I am:

Sincerely yours,
Bill Thompson

A DRINK and ice cream went well with the steaming chili as customers passed the line in charge of Rotarians Allen Blanton, Ed Ring and Ferrell Miller, hidden at the Rotary Club chili day at the American Legion hall Monday.

To the Editor:

In a Special Message to Congress last month, President Nixon recommended one of the most comprehensive programs for improving the quality of our environment ever presented. It is a 37-point program, embracing 23 major legislative proposals, as well as administrative action, in five major categories.

The program is designed to preserve our natural resources and to rescue our environment from pollution—to improve the air we breathe, the water we drink and the food we eat. The program is too big to be handled by government alone. Nor is it so formulated. Rather, it is a program in which the States and local communities, industry and individual citizens, must actively participate for its success.

While recommended by a Republican President, it is not a Republican program as such. In the fullest sense, it is an American program and should have the active support of every citizen. Because of your newspaper's interest, I am bringing these facts to your attention.

Some of the bills, as a first step toward this common goal of quality environment, have been introduced. We hope that an organ supposedly devoted to free and unbiased reporting has as one of its chiefs a reporter who colors his pages resulting from too many years of serious neglect.

Sincerely yours,
Leslie C. Arends, M. C.
